ITALIAN ANARCHIST SWAM ALL NIGHT, BUT WAS RECAPTURED

One of the Fourteen Italian Reds Who Came Here to Assassinate McKinley Found on Liberty Island After He Had Fled from the Narragansett.

President McKinley has narrowly escaped from assassins.

Instead of two, a high Government official informed The Evening World today that there are fourteen Anarchists under arrest at the detention prison of the Bureau of Immigration.

All of the men will be shipped back to whence they came immediately. Two go back to-morrow.

They are all charged with being in a conspiracy to assassinate President McKinley and have been taken singly and in pairs from incoming liners within the last ten days.

United States Secret Service agents learned that an Anarchist circle in Naples had cast lots to determine who should be the assassins. Eleven Italians and three Austrians were selected. Closely followed, they sailed from different ports. Their object was to strike individual blows at the President at the same time. That would make success sure.

ESCAPE AND CAPTURE.

Giuseppe Costa, one of the fourteen Anarchists captured by the Secret Service officials and immigration authorities, escaped from the detention ship Narragansett, on which his companion Reds are confined. He swam about all night in the bay.

At a break, thoroughly exhausted after eight hours' continuous swimming, he went ashore on Liberty Island and stretched out, half dead on the shore.

He was found naked and unconscious by the captain of the little excursion boat that carries sightseers to the Statue of Liberty.

The Barge Office was notified and Inspector Weber and an interpreter were sent after the man. He said he had come over as a stowaway on the steamer Gallia, of the Fabre line. He was clothed and brought to the Barge Office.

When brought before the Board of Investigation he told a remarkable story. He said he had come over on the Trojan Prince and not on the Gallia. He hid himself in the hold, and when darkness came on last night he crept on deck, divested himself of his clothes and went overboard.

For eight hours he was the sport of the tides and the rolling waters. Ferries and swift-moving tugs, steam yachts and small sailing craft kept him dodging all through the night. To be seen was almost as fatal as to be run down. When exhausted he would go ashore and rest on the anchor chains of some of the big schooners.

The Barge Office and the aquarium looked up to his unaccustomed eyes as military fortresses. On Governor's Island the guns of Fort Columbus frowned down upon him. At daybreak he saw Liberty Island.

JUSTICE SMYTH PASSES AWAY.

THE LATE RECORDER SMYTH.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 18.—Supreme Court Justice Frederick Smyth died here at Hotel Dennis at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Justice Smyth has been ill here with pneumonia for nearly a month. Two weeks ago he was so low that his life was despaired of. Since then he has been hovering between life and death.

Frederick Smyth was born in the County Galway, Ireland, in 1835. He came to this country when fifteen years old and immediately began the study of law. His first position was in the office of John McKean, with whom he remained twenty-seven years.

When Mr. McKean was appointed United States District Attorney, Mr. Smyth became Second Assistant, having charge of the prosecution of persons engaged in the slave traffic.

While Assistant United States District Attorney, Mr. Smyth had charge of the preparation of the testimony that resulted in the removal of several British Consuls, stationed in the United States, for violation of the neutrality laws.

He was appointed Recorder of the city in 1873 and was elected the following year for a term of fourteen years.

He presided at the trials of Carlisle Harris and Dr. Robert W. Buchanan for wife poisoning and sentenced both to die in the electric chair.

His term as Recorder expired in 1887, and he was reappointed by Tammany Hall. John W. Goff, who had acted as counsel to the Lexow committee, ran against him on the Union ticket and defeated him.

The year following the ex-Recorder was elected to the Supreme Court bench on the Tammany ticket by an overwhelming majority.

CHILD KILLED BY A HORSE-CAR.

Oscar Fredrick, seven years old, of 1109 First avenue, was knocked down in front of his home this afternoon by a horse-car and hurt badly that he died in an ambulance on the way to the hospital. The car driver was arrested.

WOMAN TOOK ACID TWICE.

Turned on the Gas Also and Finally Killed Herself.

Mrs. Emily Gilbert, a widow, thirty-four years old, living on the second floor of No. 201 East One Hundred and Third street, committed suicide this afternoon by taking a large dose of carbolic acid. Mrs. Gilbert made two previous efforts in the course of the day, once by gas and once by carbolic acid. Taking a larger dose on the third trial, she succeeded.

Mrs. Gilbert grieved much over the death of her husband, which occurred seven months ago.

This morning she turned the gas on in her room, but the fumes filled the house and her attempt to kill herself was frustrated.

Later she was heard screaming in her room, and the janitress, running to her aid, was told by Mrs. Gilbert that she had burned her mouth while using carbolic acid for toothache.

This afternoon a letter arrived for her, and Mrs. Gilbert not answering the knock, her door was broken open and she was found dead from carbolic acid. A relative who claimed the body said that the woman was in straitened circumstances.

Passengers in Quarantine.

Twenty-one passengers of the Ward line steamer Segura, from Havana, were sent to Hoffman Island for observation to-day.

POWERS IS CONVICTED.

Guilty Man Sentenced to Life Imprisonment—Quick Verdict.

(Special to The Evening World.)
GEORGETOWN, Ky., Aug. 18.—Caleb Powers was declared guilty of killing William Goebel this afternoon and immediately sentenced to prison for life.

The verdict was taken quietly, although Powers' friends accepted it with sullen silence.

Powers himself was entirely overcome and almost fainted.

He had expected a disagreement. After hearing the sentence he was taken at once to jail, where a special guard was placed.

The jury was out just forty-five minutes.

In charging the jury and replying to the charge of the defense that the evidence had failed to connect Powers with Youtsey, Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin approached the prisoner and with dramatic gestures and manner said:

"The crime of the murder of Goebel is but little less in degree than your crime to Youtsey. You gave him that key; under your influence Youtsey went. All the while that you were conspiring with Youtsey to have Goebel killed you were conspiring to cover up your own guilt and to let that fall upon Youtsey."

SUICIDE AT FERRY IDENTIFIED AS DORA KRONEMAN.

Laundry Mark Led to Revealing Young Woman's Flight from Home and Her Family's Search to Find Whether She Had Purchased Poison—She Was Determined to Die.

The beautiful young woman who drank carbolic acid in the West Twenty-third Street Ferry house this morning and died in the New York hospital at 10 o'clock was identified by The Evening World this afternoon as Dora Kroneman, of No. 25 East One Hundred and Eleventh street.

Miss Kroneman's father, Max Kroneman, is a well-to-do manufacturer of hats and caps in Lecker street, and of his six children Dora was next to the eldest, and when fifteen years old she kept books for him and continued until May last when ill-health compelled her to quit. She has recently suffered from intense pains in the head.

Her father sent her on an errand to the corner this morning shortly after 8 o'clock and she did not return. She had often said that the pains made her wish to die.

The family waited for her to return, and as the time went on became worried. At 10 o'clock her brother began a tour of the drug stores in the neighborhood of One Hundred and Twelfth street and Madison avenue, and made a systematic inquiry as to whether the young woman had purchased poison.

He could get no word. Then he went to the East One Hundred and Fourth Street Police Station and reported the case, but was advised to wait awhile for developments.

The laundry mark, "Kron," on the clothing of the dead woman, furnished to the Evening World the clue that led to her identification.

IN THE FERRY-HOUSE.

She was found shortly after 9 o'clock this morning suffering from carbolic acid poisoning in the West Twenty-third street ferry-house. She was taken to the New York Hospital, where she died without having regained consciousness.

The physicians worked over her trying every known medical device for restoring life. A half dozen nurses stood beside the cot to do the physicians' bidding and in the anteroom outside was the bluecoat who had found the unconscious woman.

It was 10 o'clock when the house surgeon shook his head.

The last faint pulse beat had subsided.

SECRET OF THE DEAD.

She was dead, and had not spoken a word. The surgeon looked the policeman for a history of the case, and he told all he knew. That was little.

The policeman was John Byrne, of the West Twentieth street station. Shortly after 9 o'clock he had been summoned by an attendant in the Erie ferry-house, at the foot of West Twentieth street, where he was on duty. The attendant cautioned him to silence.

FALL OF PEKING COST HUNDREDS OF LIVES.

Allied Troops Blew Up Gates After a Desperate All-Day Resistance.

TOKIO, Aug. 17.—Gen. Yamaguchi wires from Peking under date of Aug. 16 as follows:

"The allies attacked Peking early yesterday, opening with artillery on the eastern side. The wall was obstinately held by the enemy.

"The Japanese and Russians were on the northward of the Tung-Chow Canal. The Americans and British were on the south side.

"At nightfall the Japanese blew up the two eastern gates of the Tartar City and entered.

"In the mean time the Americans and British entered the Chinese city by the Tung-Pien gates. Detachments of each force were sent toward the Legations.

"The parties met near the Legations and opened communication. All the Ministers and their staffs were found safe.

"The Japanese loss was over 100 killed, including three officers.

"The losses of the allies have not been ascertained. Four hundred Chinese were killed."

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The Westminster Gazette attributes the celerity of the American reports to the fact that the Americans are erecting field wires and have a staff officer assigned for that express purpose.
